Provisionally admitted students are restricted to part-time enrollment in their first term. Provisional students must complete their class and earn a B or better, as well as comply with any other terms required as part of their provisional admission. Provisionally admitted students who do not successfully complete their first term and gain full admission may appeal to continue at a provisional status for one additional term. Appeals are not guaranteed, and decisions are made at the discretion of Claremont Lincoln University. Students whose appeal is denied or who do not successfully complete a second term of provisional enrollment will be denied full admission and dismissed.
